COLONEL BRECKINRIDGE TO BE

NEW M. C. I. DIRECTOR

Col. James C. Breckinridge is to be the new Director of the Marine Corps Institute. Colonel Breckinridge is now on leave and will take over his new duties upon his return to Washington.

Colonel Breckinridge has had twenty-four years service in the Marine Corps exclusive of eight months prior service as an officer of the Corps during the Spanish-American War. Thirteen years and eleven months of this service has been at sea or on foreign duty. He is the holder of the Navy Cross and is a graduate of the Naval War College and of the Army War College, having just graduated from the latter course.

Until the arrival of Colonel Breckinridge, Maj. S.

Smith Lee, who has been second in command at the Marine Barracks for several months, is acting as Director of the Institute.

CANDIDATES FOR COMMISSION

CLASS TO START IN JULY

A course of instruction for noncommissioned officers who have been designated as candidates for commission will commence at the Marine Barracks, Washington, D. C., about the middle of this month.

This course is conducted in accordance with the Marine Corps plan of always allowing deserving noncommissioned officers to move up into the commissioned class. It is the carrying out of the plan which all services adopted during the recent war but which the Marine Corps alone still adheres to consistently.

Each year the Major General Commandant prescribes the subjects in which candidates for commission shall be examined. Commanding officers throughout the Corps are entitled to recommend noncommissioned officers between the ages of 21 and 27, when commissioned, and the names of such men as are recommended are sent to the Major General Commandant. A set of preliminary examinations in the prescribed subjects are then prepared. If the men recommended show sufficient foundation they are designated as candidates and sent to Washington for a course of instruction in the subjects in which they will later be examined for commission.

The course this year will include instruction in the following subjects: Arithmetic, 6 weeks; Algebra, 12 weeks; Geometry, 10 weeks; Trigonometry, 8 weeks, two periods daily; Spelling, 24 weeks, two periods a week; Grammar, 12 weeks; Rhetoric, 12 weeks; General History, 12 weeks; U. S. History, 12 weeks; Geography, 6 weeks. In addition practical and theoretical instruction in drill will be given 3 periods a week.

Class instruction is carried on five hourly periods a day, five days a week. Saturday morning is given over to practice marches and training in giving commands, scouting, patrolling and advance and rear guard formations.

Hash Mark Gives "Don'ts" for Sons-in-Law

A son-in-law is a son-in-law, and a mother-in-law is a mother-in-law, and often the twain do meet. That seems to be the whole difficulty. It's a big problem, and now "Hash Mark" is attempting to form a league of sons-in-law to bring peace between the two factions.

Don't think you can suddenly suffer a total loss of memory—and get away with it.

Don't think you can fool your mother-in-law by an original lie. It is certain the lie is not new to her ears.

Don't think you can get any sympathy from her when your wife is around. It's a case of "ladies first."

Don't cheer when she leaves for home. Trains have left without passengers before.

Don't treat her too nice, because she might prolong her visit—she might even consent to live with you.

Don't bring her home flowers because she'll get more suspicious than Dr. Watson's friend, Sherlock Holmes.

Don't forget to bring her home flowers because she'll wonder what's the matter if you don't.

Don't get mad if your wife puts talcum powder in baking powder biscuits because your mother-in-law probably told her to do it.

Don't try to pretend that life is one sweet dream of happiness with her daughter, because she knows darn well it ain't.

Don't forget she knows your wife better than you do and hasn't much sympathy left after the rice and shoes were thrown.

Before and After

When she's a sweet young thing with orange blossoms and a long, sweeping, white veil, 'n everything, the organ strikes up the tune:

"HERE COMES THE BRIDE."

About ten or twelve years of marital meanderings, and the organ might well strike up:

"HERE COMES THE BROOD."

Always Cold

The optimist had both his feet taken off by a train. "It's not so bad as it looks," he remarked to a friend, "You see, they were always cold!"

"Speaking of bathing in famous springs," said the tramp to the tourist, "I bathed in the spring of '86."

No More Extravagance

"I'll be a sister to you," said the summer girl.

"Well, sister, I'll just cancel that big dinner order. We'll have a glass of soda pop instead."

Asker—That was a wonderful record wasn't it, when that girl in New York danced 50 hours without stopping?

Teller—It wasn't so much. I knew a man who had St. Vitus dance and he kept it up all his life.

Billing or Cooin'?

She—Dear, let's go in for this Coue stuff.

He—Aw! Leave that cooin' stuff to couples that have been married a shorter time than we have.

Registration Officer (to spinster)—Your name, please?

Spinster—Matilda Brown.

Officer—Age?

Spinster—Have the Misses Hill, who live next door, given you their ages?

Officer—No.

Spinster—Well, then, I'm the same age as they.

Officer—That will do. (Proceeding to fill in particulars, he murmurs: "Miss Brown, as old as the hills.")

Bloomin' Genius

He wrote the sweetest note, but on second thought, one could hardly call it a note, either.

It began—"My dearest, sweetest, most lovable girl:

"Your radiant face is before my eyes all hours of the day and night. I dream of your entrancing presence. I review with the utmost ecstasy the words that I should like to whisper in your shell-like ear."

And it continues in the same vein one page, two, three, five, eight; and it ends:

"—answer and say that I may take you in my arms and pour out the cravings of my heart. Answer and say that I may utter those words which will break my heart and drain my vitality if they remain unsaid.

"Oh, lady of my dreams, my very soul cries out to yours.

"Your delightfully wretched slave."
He signed it and said, "Now who will I send it to?"

Clever, We Calls It

A cheerful looking old gentleman went up to the poulterer's three days before Christmas. He looked longingly at a row of six turkeys hanging outside the shop and then said to the storekeeper, with a bad stammer, "I w-want you to p-p-pick out the three tee-t-toughest turkeys you h-have," adding with a wink, "I keep b-b-boarders." The proprietor gladly acceded to the request. Then the benevolent gentleman laid his hand on the other three and said: "I'll t-take these." (Mess Sergeants please note.)

Panhandle Pete—Do yose tink cigar smoking is hard on de eyes?

Frayed Freddie—Sure! I was nearly blind before I found one worth picking up dis mornin'.

The Unusual

Terrific mob on the street the other day. First a cop tried to hold 'em in. He rapped for help and the sergeant brought out a platoon.

Some mob. Two women fainted, boy broke a leg, man lost his hat, clothes torn. No such excitement seen in ten or twenty years. Terrific.

Finally the police got the cause of it separated from a tangle, took her to the station, where she was fined ten dollars and costs for disturbing the peace.

"And the next time you go on the street," said the judge, "see that your face is painted, eyebrows penciled, skirts are short, hair false, and everything, un'stand? It's all right for you to be old-fashioned, but the public safety demands that you look like the rest of 'em or stay home!"

Nemesis

Spud Murphy was no gentleman; he was a cad. More, he was an egotistical cad, which is the worst, and probably the most common variety. He had always looked so much the gentleman, however, that people seldom asked "Is he a gentleman?" Handsome and debonaire he was, with an attractive line of small talk.

He had never loved but lightly. Many were the feminine hearts he had conquered, and he intended to conquer as many more. Worse, he bragged of his affairs, telling of the manner he rid himself of a love when a new lure was presented.

He had given Florence a rush for almost six months—ages for him. Her birthday was less than two weeks away, he remembered with a start, for it was a coincidence that both her birthday and his were the same.

That would mean an expensive present, and expensive presents were distasteful to him. He could drop her now, and pick up another later. That girl he had met at the Quantico dance for instance. Spud found stationery and pen, and wrote:

FLORENCE: It hurts me to give you pain, but I can not go on in this futile fashion. My love for you has turned to kindness. It is but one of the passions of the past. My lies to you, sweet as they were once, sound false and dull to me now. My heart has always been restless, like a scrap of paper blown by the winds, and I must find new fields. I know that your heart is bleeding, but this, Flo, is good-bye. S.

"That," Spud said with a smile, as he rose, "will do for her. I believe I can make any girl love me," he said.

Time passed, but Spud had heard nothing from Florence. He was musing on this fact, which piqued him, when the music of the guard presented him with a package. Spud's conceit reasserted itself, for the address was in Florence's writing. This was his birthday! She had sent him a present! Trying to win him back!

He tore off the wrappings and plunged his hands through a mass of tissue paper. At last he reached the object, and the world reeled. It was a miniature dumb-bell. The attached card was inscribed: "The one before the last, my dear, hurt so much more than you."

JULY 4TH

One hundred and forty-seven years ago, July 4, 1776, our forefathers appended their names to a declaration of rights which declared the thirteen colonies free and independent of the mother nation.

On this July 4th it is our privilege and our duty to hold in reverence the acts of those men, who little knew at that time whether they were to be hanged as traitors and go to an unnamed grave, or be honored by their descendants as the first citizens of the greatest and most powerful republic in the world.

Little do we think now of the struggle that those pioneers of liberty and freedom had in the dark days of the Revolutionary War and little do we think of the sacrifices, their giving their all, that a republic might be born to take its place among the nations of the world.

But it should be brought home to all that the spirit of sacrifice and service are the only things that do and will keep this country in the foreground among nations as the greatest exponent of freedom and equality, justice, truth, and right.

Do your little and do it from an altruistic standpoint and not from a standpoint of self. Show your country that you can sacrifice and serve for the common good just as those heroes of the revolutionary period.

Let not this July 4th be merely another holiday and a day of recreation, but let its true significance fill you with a love of country and a spirit to serve it well.

GET A RECRUIT—EARN EXTRA LEAVE

A recruiting plan of interest to all Marines has just been made effective by a circular letter of the Major General Commandant addressed to all officers.

The idea is that every man who goes on leave is in himself a recruiting party for the Marine Corps. In order that this idea may be carried out the Major General Commandant has directed that the following comment be placed on the back of each man's furlough papers:

Every Man a Recruiting Party

"A satisfactory Marine is the best recruiting medium in the opinion of the Major General Commandant.

"A neatly dressed, manly appearing and well conducted Marine, on leave of absence in his home town, remote from the seaboard, is bound to create a good impression. If he is, in addition, enthusiastic about his job and has the interest of his service at heart, what better party could the Marine Corps send out to secure recruits?

"To make this voluntary recruiting service attractive there is offered, as an added incentive to obtain recruits, an additional period of five days leave for each recruit enlisted through a man's efforts.

"If you are satisfied with your life in the U. S. Marine Corps and believe that there are advantages to be had by good men, tell your friends about it. Do not paint it as a life of ease and luxury, but tell them of the many advantages; of the opportunities of following a course in the Marine Corps Institute; of the steady job and the pay, in addition to the housing and subsistence; of the free medical and dental service; free clothing; of the opportunity for travel throughout the world; of the opportunity for athletics and of the provisions for retirement with pay after sixteen or twenty years' service.

NOTE: If you go into the Reserve after sixteen years' service with the rating of Sergeant Major or Quartermaster Sergeant you will draw from the Government a monthly pay equal to the interest on $20,000. What job in civilian life will permit you to save over $20,000? What job in civilian life will permit you to save over $1,000 a year?

"If any of your friends are interested, and you believe they would make good men for the Marine Corps, YOUR OWN SERVICE, place their names on the attached slip and send it to the U. S. Marine Corps Recruiting Officer nearest the man's home.

"If the Recruiting Officer succeeds in enlisting them he will notify your Commanding Officer, who will credit you with five days' additional leave for each recruit so obtained, such leave to be taken when your services can be spared.

"There is really no added incentive necessary to urge a true Marine, interested only in increasing the effectiveness of HIS OWN SERVICE, to bring in his friends. The additional leave is a recognition of work well done.

"When you go on leave, or in your letters to your friends, tell them the truth about your life and work and persuade them to 'join the marine Corps', if they are men of calibre you would be glad to have serve with you.

"Make sure that the Recruiting Officer understands that you are to be credited with recruiting the new man."

PRESIDENT TO REVIEW FLEET AT SEATTLE

Plans have been under consideration for having the entire Battle Fleet present at Seattle when the President returns from his trip to Alaska.

About July 25 all the vessels of the fleet in the Pacific will collect at Seattle where the President is scheduled to arrive on the 27th. Ten battleships, the Texas, Oklahoma, Nevada, California, Arizona, Mississippi, Pennsylvania, Idaho, Tennessee, and Maryland, will be present for the review. This powerful naval force will be augmented by the 35th and 46th Destroyer Divisions and the 11th Destroyer Squadron, 31 vessels in all; and the destroyer tender, Melville, the hospital ship Relief, and the repair ship Prometheus.

This will form the largest force of naval vessels ever collected on the Pacific Coast. Elaborate features are being prepared including in addition to the review a gigantic display of fireworks in the bay on the night of the 27th.

A trip to the Island of Hawaii is being planned by the Post Exchange Officer early in August to visit the Volcano of Kilauea and the snow-capped mountain of Mauna-Kea. And under the direction of Tai Sing Lou, Navy photographer, are expected to do a few original stunts for recruiting purposes.

The next transport from the States is expected to bring with it some well known ball players with which the team here expects to work over some of the topnotchers in the Harbor League if not win the pennant which they have had for the last two years. It is also expected to bring quite a few bandsmen which will do wonders to break the monotony which seems to be enjoyed by every post during the latter part of each month.

The new Commanding Officer, Col. F. L. Bradman, is expected to arrive on the 19th along with Major Creecy and Lieutenant Odgers.

What Will You Be Doing One Year From Today?

Three hundred and sixty-five days from now—what?

Will you still be struggling along in the same old job at the same old salary—worried about the future—never quite able to make both ends meet—standing still while other men go ahead?

One year from today will you still be putting off your start toward success—thrilled with ambition one moment and then cold the next—delaying, waiting, fiddling away the precious hours that will never come again?

Don't do it, man—don't do it.

There is no greater tragedy in the world than that of a man who stays in the rut all his life, when with just a little effort he could bring large success within his grasp.

Make up your mind today that you're going to train yourself to do some one thing well. Choose the work you like best in the list below, mark an X beside it, mail the coupon to Scranton, and we will send you, without cost or obligation, the full story of what the I. C. S. can do for you.

Right now you can decide where you will be in 1924.

Common sense will tell you that it is far better to send in this Success Coupon today than to wait another precious year and then wish you had!

Pay Clk. J. W. Norris—Detached Headquarters, Marine Corps, to 2nd Brig., D. R.

O Tempus!

Absent Minded Man—"What time is it, my dear." She—"Twenty after three."
A. M. M.—"I wonder if they will catch them?"

In a French-Canadian settlement in eastern Quebec a Frenchman was invited to partake of the evening meal at the home of his brother.

During the course of the meal the milk pitcher was passed to the Frenchman, and while pouring some into his coffee he remarked: "Pierre, where you get these milk?"

Pierre replied, "Those milk, she come from my cow."

"Well!" was the response, "you had better get one tarpaulin for these cow, she leaks!"—Judge.

Doctor—"I believe we should let him get a little stronger before cutting into him."

Gyrene—"What do you think I am—a cheese?"

If Names Mean Anything This Guy
Ought to Have it Soft on Recruiting
Duty

Sergeant Douglas S. Catchim, recruiting duty at Washington, D. C.

The Lady—Look here; you said that if I'd give you your dinner you'd mow the lawn for me.

The Hobo—I'd like to do it, mum, but I gotta teach yer a lesson. Never trust the word of a total stranger.

Two Frogs

Two frogs fell into a milk pail deep,
And one poor frog did nothing but weep,
He sank to the bottom as heavy as lead,
And there in the morning they found him dead.

The other frog shouted, "I'll have a good try,
The pail may be deep, but I don't wish to die."
He churned up the milk with his legs fore and hind—
There's nothing like having a masterful mind.

For when the next morning this frog was found,
On a pat of fresh butter, he floated around.

Help!

Have you read Freckles!
No, mine are brown.

In Requiem

"Here lies my wife, Amanthy Proctor,
Who ketched a cold but wouldn't doctor,
She couldn't stay, she had to go,
Praise God from whom all blessing flow."

I Meeta Him

I sicka da bean,
And sicka da bell;
I aska da doc,
He no canna tell;
I gotta da hunch
I no getta well,
But I meeta da doc
When he comea to hell.

Do You Know

That two great highways in the Province of Quebec are to be brilliantly lighted? One road runs from Montreal to Quebec and the other from Montreal to the United States boundary.

That Smyrna is to be rebuilt by an Ottoman company which will work together with the Banque Nationale de Credit and the Banque Perrier, of France? The company contemplates reconstructing houses and other buildings in Turkish style.

That one-third of the earnings of the German husband must be given to the wife to maintain the family table? That is the German law. This one-third income is not to meet wages of servants or rent, but merely to cover the expense of keeping up the table.

That nearly 20,000 quarts of skimmed milk a day are used in France for making substitutes for horn, ivory and amber? The casein in the milk is mixed with formaline producing "petrified" milk, a hard, elastic, inviolable substance that is easily worked.

That Mosul, the center of the rich Mesopotamian oil fields, is 70 miles from a railroad?

That the Indian Archipelago consists of thousands of green islands and islets scattered over the Austral-Asiatic Mediterranean Sea, separating the Pacific from the Indian Ocean? It took an aviator four days to cross the archipelago by airplane on his way from Singapore to Australia, flying every day as long as the sun shone. The population of the archipelago numbers approximately 48,000,000, of which 34,000,000 live in Java.

That Paris has 265,000 vehicles of all kinds?

That more than 350 children are living on canal boats in the United States? This interferes with the children's schooling as the boating season on the canals ranges from seven to nine months in length.

That we have reached the stage in our agricultural development where there is practically no more potential agricultural land left unutilized that does not involve unprofitable expense for reclamation or clearing, according to an agricultural economist connected with the Department of Agriculture? However, much of our agricultural land can be cultivated more intensively, when higher prices for products justify the increased costs of production.
